JENNIFER BUCKELL

ARTIST STATEMENT

Based in Montreal with roots in the Pekuakamiulnuatsh community, I am a self-taught artist working primarily in acrylics. My work honors ancestral artistic traditions while exploring contemporary themes of life, death, and the sacred relationship between humans and the natural world.

Through bold graphic compositions with strong contour lines and vibrant color palettes, I create pieces that bridge cultural heritage with modern expression. Recurring motifs of wildlife, botanical elements, and geometric patterns investigate themes of vitality, mortality, and spiritual transformation.

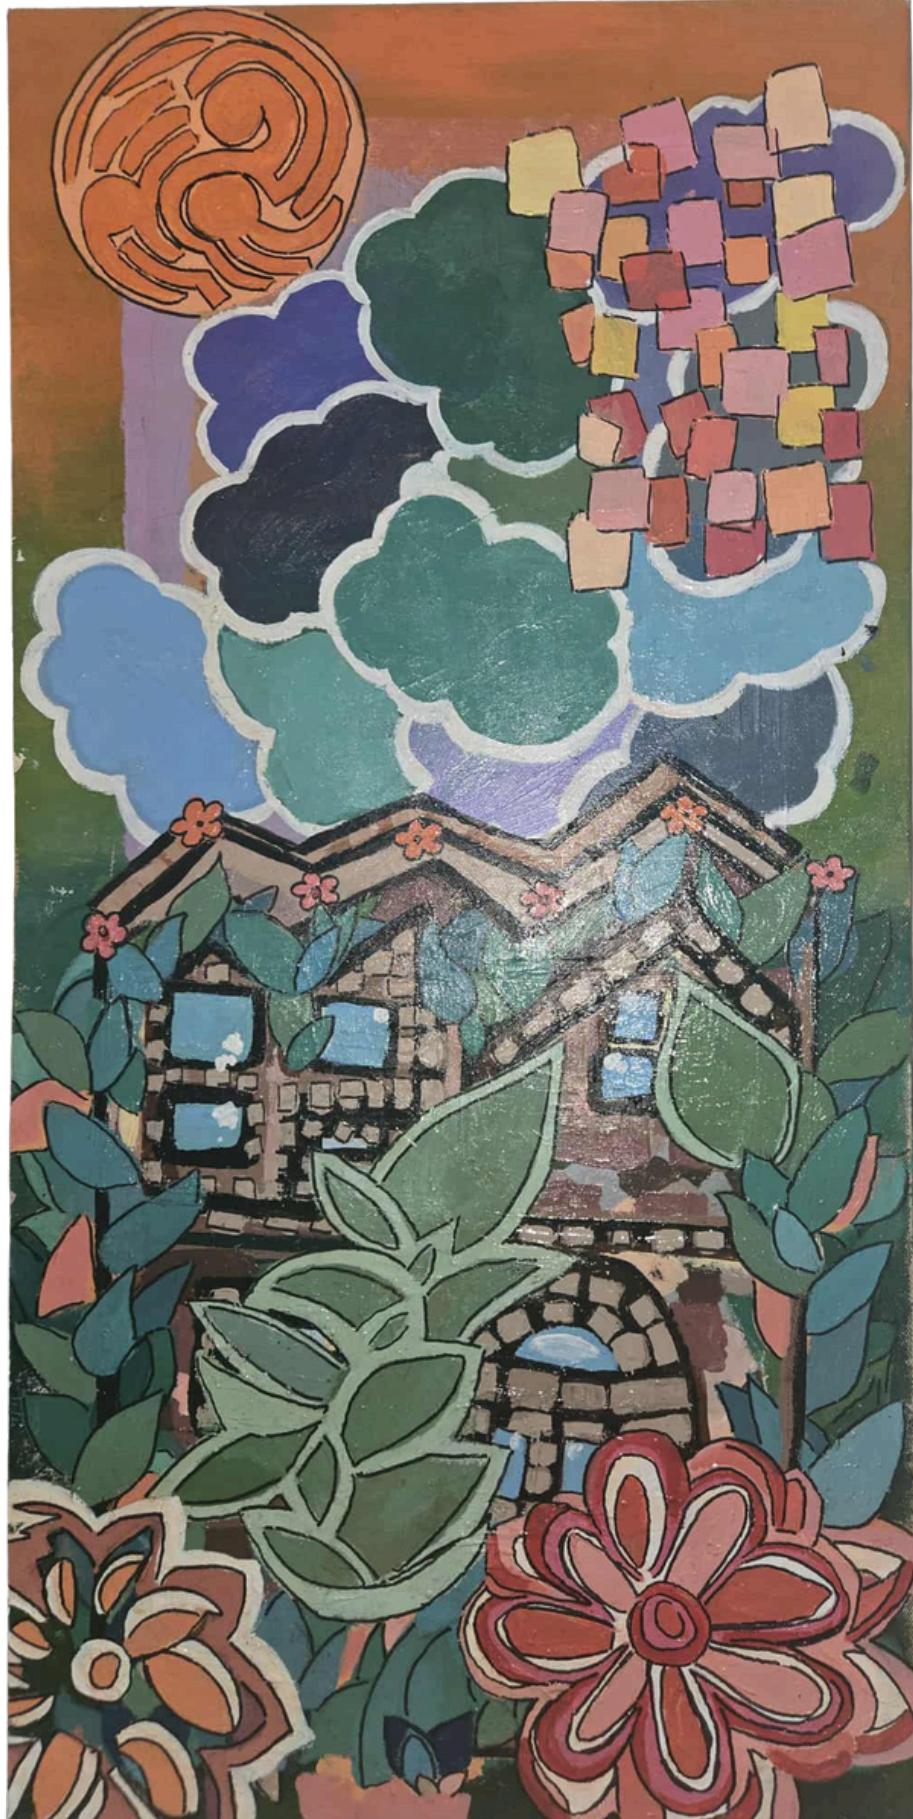

Psychedelic elements appear throughout my work—sometimes subtle, sometimes bold—creating layered visual experiences. Some works incorporate UV-reactive paints, inviting viewers to experience familiar subjects transformed under different light. Each painting is characterized by confident black outlines that define color fields, creating effects reminiscent of stained glass while emphasizing the decorative and spiritual qualities inherent in the natural world.

My practice is an ongoing dialogue between traditional Indigenous visual languages and contemporary artistic expression
